2 MORE GAMES LOST

TARKS BEAT NORMALS—CHILLICOTHE WINS FROM HIGHS

A DISASTROUS SEASON

In Seven Games Played the Normals Have Seven Points Out of 362 —Highs Show Up Better

Tarkio College again swamped Coach Palfreyman's Normal eleven in the return game played yesterday at Tarkio. The score was 42-0, thirty-two points less than the score the first game.

The comparatively low score was a surprise to Tarkio rooters, who expected a hundred point margin. Maryville made nine first down during the game and twice threatened to score.

The Bearcats had the ball on the fifteen yard line in the second quarter, but a forward pass that strayed away and nestled in the arms of the wrong player gave the ball to the Tarks, who promptly took it out of danger.

Later in the game Miller made the feature play of the day when he intercepted a Tarkio forward pass on his own 25-yard line and dodged back through the opposing team for 45 yards before he was downed. With the ball on Tarkio's thirty-yard line, the Bearcats then made three successive first downs, finally losing the ball on down on the eight yard line.

Tarkio mixed straight football with open play. They scored three touchdown in each half and kicked goal each time.

Miller, Richards and Ramsey played well for Maryville. Ramsey received a slight injury near the end of the game and Hanna a sprained ankle, but both men will probably be in shape for the Kirksville game here next Thursday.

Of the seven games played to date, the Normals have scored but once, when they made seven points in the Graceland, Iowa, game on October 12. The other games resulted: Springfield, Oct. 9—Springfield 56, Normal 0; Drury, Oct. 22, Drury 96, Normal 0; William Jewell, Oct. 26, Jewell 32, Normal 0; Tarkio, Nov. 2, Tarkio 74, Normal 0; Missouri Wesleyan, Nov. 9, Wesleyans 32, Normals 0.

The Game on Normal Gridiron.

In what was considered by many the best game of the season, Chillicothe High School defeated the local High School team on the Normal gridiron yesterday afternoon 17-7. The day was ideal for the sport and a big crowd cheered the teams as they struggled back and forth on the field.

Captain Pickens of Maryville was the individual star of the game. His showing in the last two games entitles him to consideration in picking the best players of this seciton. The other members of the backfield—Foreman, Pierpoint and Miller—also played well, and Masters at left tackle put up a strong game.

Winn and Dowell starred for Chillicothe in the back field, and the ends —Taylor and Cesar—played rings around Maryville's flank protectors.

M. H. S. can be proud of the showing of their team in yesterday's game as they showed a complete reversal of form over that displayed in the game played at Chillicothe, which resulted in a 25-0 score. Chillicothe is rated as one of the strongest teams in northwest Missouri. Among others they hold a 29-3 victory over Trenton, a team which has defeated such teams as St. Joseph Central, Lathrop and Plattsburg. The Chillicothe team is coached by Fred Lewis, a Maryville boy.

COST $500, GOT $10,000 BACK

Commercial Club Bulletin Points Out Value to Maryville of State Sunday School Convention

It cost Maryville $500 to bring the Sunday chool convention here. There were no less than 1,000 out-of-town delegates in the total of 1,570. At $2 a day, which is a very conservative estimate, not less than $8,000 was left in Maryville. We believe it is safe to estimate that not less than $10,000 was brought to Maryville this week. In other words, Maryville is $10,000 better off on Saturday morning than she was on Tuesday morning. It pays to spend a little money to bring something of this kind to the city. Incidentally, this was the biggest convention ever held by the Association. It put Maryville on the map, and from a publicity standpoint, the value to Maryville and Nodaway county cannot be estimated. Under the careful supervision of H. L. Raines, the delegates were met at the train and taken back when they left by cars furnished by the Commercial Club. This feature was very popular. In many ways the Commercial Club gained prominence. Many persons visited the office during the week asking for literature and information about Maryville and Nodaway county.

HOLIDAY GOODS IN THE SHOPS

Maryville Merchants Begin to Display Christmas Goods for Shoppers— Many New Things

Holiday goods have made their appearance in several of the local stores and from all appearances there is no scarcity of Christmas novelties. The assortment seems as large and as attractive as usual and while a number of the old "standbys" are on hand, there are also a number of new and useful gifts. Perhaps the most noticeable of the new novelties are those suitable for the soldier boys and these are shown in great variety.

Perhaps it is the war which is causing the display of Christmas goods earlier than they are usually shown in this city. Packages for the soldier in this country should be sent earlier, since the mails probably will be swamped this year as never before. Perhaps another reason for the early display is to get folks enthused with the Christmas spirit whose thoughts for months have been occupied with only the war and it will take some time to get their interest transferred into other channels. While Christmas will perhaps not be a "Merry Christmas" for most of the elders, there are children still to be remembered as much as usual.

AY.W.C.A.FUNDNEXT

WOMEN WILL AID IN SOLVING SOME WAR PROBLEMS

STATE'S SHARE $75,000

To Build and Maintain Hostess Houses at Cantonments and to Help Women Engaged in War Work

Beginning December 3rd, Missouri, exclusive of Kansas City, will open a campaign for $75,000, which is this state's quota of the $4,000,000 war fund now being raised by the Women's War Work Council of the Young Women's Christian Association. Kansas City is not included in this amount because that city belongs to another district and already has completed its quota of $50,000 towards the fund.

The money raised here and elsewhere throughout the United States for this fund will be used in financing the work now under way under the direction of the Women's War Work Council of the National Young Women's Christian Association. The work consists of building and maintaining Hostess Houses at the various army camps and cantonments throughout the United States, aiding to solve the housing and other living problems for girls and women brought into strange communities by the government for special war work, and in conducting social work for foreign speaking women in this country and for nurses and other women connected with the armies of the Allies in Europe.

The campaign throughout the United States is under the direction of the National Women's War Work Council Committed, of which Mrs. James S. Cushman of New York City, is chairman.

The south central field, of which Missouri is a part, is expected to raise $200,000 of this $4,000,000. The other states of this field are Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

RUSH TO GET CAR ORDERS IN

Need of Government for Automobile Trucks Will Cut Down Production of Pleasure Cars

Announcement a few days ago in a Washington paper that the government would likely stop the sale of pleasure cars has started things in local automobile circles. One dealer said today that his sales had speeded up and that he has already booked orders for four or five cars, 1918 model, to be delivered as soon as he can get the cars. Other dealers report a speeding up in business. People want cars, and they are going to get them before Uncle Sam screws down the lid and orders all automobile factories to proceed in making equipment for the government. Of (course, this proposed order will not affect the truck business and the country will not feel any effects from the order. The order will merely affect pleasure cars.

Byng, Byng. That's what routed the Germans.

The local administrator proposes that consumers shall get their coal at fair prices. The coal dealers in Maryville are reliable and fair minded men and the Democrat-Forum believes all of them will be disposed to abide by any fair rulings. So there should be no trouble in getting together. Dealers have, of course been handicapped in getting coal and, up to the present, it has seemed that the matter of getting the coal was more important than the price. The attorney general says the operators are getting too much. There is no question about the cost to the consumer being more than it should be.

Maryville did herself proud in the Y. M. C. A. campaign and the State Sunday School convention was the greatest ever held. This was not because Maryville is advantageously located or because people wanted to come to Maryville more than other towns, but because the committee here put energy into their efforts and more publicity was given to the coming of the convention by the local press. These are the things that count. The big Y. M. C. A. fund raised leaves a clear conscience and a satisfaction of having done something for a good cause. The Sunday School convention left with us a wholesome influence and will spread a great deal of desirable advertising among good people. Let's put the same zeal and energy into all our desirable proejcts that Mr. Gillam and his associates and Mr. Roseberry and his associates did on these occasions and Maryville will continue to be a good place to live and will grow to be a much bigger place.

NODAWAY COUNTY COAL.

Just now there is no American product more sought for than common, ordinary coal. Everybody, everywhere, is shivering with fear lest the supply run short and his bin become empty. With all the increased production, consumption is said to be exceeding the supply owing to the tremendous amount demanded in the production of war supplies and in transportation. Yet there is no shortage of the product itself. There are millions of acres of undeveloped coal lands in the United States.

The prevailing prices should stimulate more development. Nodaway county has been shivering all fall and fearing the worst. The people have been paying higher prices than ever known. They have searched the country over and prayed for more coal, but there it ended. Maryville has, for many years, said she could not induce factories to come here because there was no cheap coal. There is coal in Nodaway county. Why not find out what it amounts to? There is said to be a vein extending all the way from Quitman to Arkoe in the south part of the county and it is said the oil drillers in the north part of the county a few years ago drove their drill through a thick vein of good coal in the north part of the county. Why not find cut just what we have? Men are rushing into the oil fields, extending their wheat fields and corn fields because the profit is large. Coal is bringing the highest price at the mines and is also profitable. It is not only profitable, but we must have it.

It would appear to be a most excellent time to organize a company of progressive men and determine once for all just what Nodaway county contains in the way of coal. If we have food and will not feed ourselves, we will not be pitied if the world fails to feed us. The development of a few good coal mines in this county would not only mean thousands of dollars saved in cheaper fuel, but it would eventually mean the distribution of millions in the pay rolls of new industries brought here on account of it.

DR. FRAKER IS DEAD

End Comes to the Principal in Famous Insurance Swindle in Kansas City.

CONSPIRED TO GET $100,000

Clever Scheme Was Frustrated by Kansas Attorney After Some Policies Had Been Paid.

One of the most noted insurance swindles ever perpetrated in the United States was recalled by the death at Kansas City recently of Dr. George W. Fraker of Excelsior Springs. This is not the first time that Dr. Fraker has been reported dead, but this time the corpus delicti can be established. On the former occasion his "death" followed soon after he had obtained life insurance aggregating $100,000.

One night in 1894 the doctor, a boy who was living with him and an old negro went down on the Missouri river for a fishing trip. The boy and the negro, who were some distance from the doctor, heard a loud splash as a portion of the bank caved in and they reported hearing a cry of alarm from Dr. Fraker.

They ran to where the noise had come from and found that an embankment, which had been undermined by a deep eddy had fallen into the river, and they reported having seen Dr. Fraker's hat floating away in the current.

The large amount of life insurance carried by Fraker immediately attracted attention and the keenest detectives in the country were put on the case by insurance companies. One rumor was to the effect that Fraker was a woman and having assumed the dress of that sex, never would be found.

Believing Fraker dead, the insurance companies, one by one, paid the death claims to his beneficiaries. One or two companies held out, however, after being ordered by court to settle. After more than a year had elapsed it remained for a lawyer, R. T. Herrick, now of Independence, Kas., to get a tip, act on it and cause the arrest of Fraker, who was found alive and exceedingly healthly in a remote logging camp in the Minnesota woods.

Fraker was brought back under arrest and a portion of the money paid by other companies was recovered, but not all. Attempts to prosecute him for conspiracy failed, as it could not be proved that Fraker had received any of the insurance money or had benefited by the ruse.

HIGH PRICES---LESS HUNTING

However There Are Still a Number of Eager Nimrods Left in Nodaway Co.—Good Quail Season

When Daniel Boone desired to go hunting he had only to shoulder his rifle, call the dogs and set out in any direction his fancy might list. Not so with a Nodaway county hunter of today. In the first place, he probably has no dog to call; for the high cost of living has long since come between man and his "best friend." Also, the man of moderate means hesitates to bid against the Allies for ammunition nor would he dare go wherever he liked to hunt, else some farmer would hail him before a justice of the peace for trespass. Moreover, Mr. Nodaway county man must provide himself with a small slip of paper costing one dollar, and called a hunting license. He then understands that spirit behind that old bit of Presbyterian prayer, "Lord, we thank Thee for the blessed right of freedom without license." Lastly, game is scarce and may be shot only in season.

Despite these drawbacks, several hundred hunting licenses have been taken out in Nodaway county this year. Ducks, geese and quail comprise nearly all the game. Of course, squirrels, 'possums, coons and rabbits are more or less plentiful. They, however, are hunted by the farmers, who may hunt without license on their own or rented land. Ducks and geese are found on the Missouri river. Quail are spread pretty well over the country wherever there are hiding places. Buck-brush, thickets of small brush and patches of grass tufts afford ideal covers for quail especially when in a draw. Quails must be near water. This season, which has had enough rain, allows them a wide range of feeding. In dry seasons they run mostly in the Missouri river bottoms.

Fox hunting, which used to be popular with many, has died out. Barbed wire fences, which prevent the man on horseback from following, and the higher cost of feeding hounds, are responsible. Foxes are still plentiful. No one keeps a pack of hounds now.

VALUE OF ALFALFA

DEMONSTRATION GIVEN BY PUPILS OF THREE SCHOOLS

IT INTERESTEN PATRONS

Classes at Elm Grove, Glendale and Mt. Pleasant Give Program at Latter Last Night

The rural schools of Glendale, Elm Grove and Mt. Pleasant gave a demonstration of the study of alfalfa before a large crowd of school patrons last night at Mt. Pleasant, the schools having just completed the study on this subject in vitalized agriculture.

Lois King, of the Glendale school very effectively explained the valu of the alfalfa plant and leaves, beginning with the origin and giving its development up to the present time. Grace Coburn of the Elm Grove school, showed the importance of the roots as a subsoiler, illustrating with alfalfa specimens she had collected from the fields.

A demonstration on testing soil for acidity was given by Aline Holt of Mt. Pleasan school. Soil from different parts of a field was taken and tested by the litmus test.

Iva McDowell of Mt. Pleasant read a composition on the preparation of the seed bed, bringing ou tthe advantages of summer fallowing, liming the soil and inoculating with soil from a sweet clover or alfalfa field

Alfalfa, like other crops, has many enemies, which was also shown by Raymond Houston of the Glendale school.

Cleo Holt, Henry Coburn and Loren Buzzard gave the alfalfa surveys of their districts, which were of interest to the patrons, giving them a knowledge of what was being done with alfalfa in their section of the country.

A timothy and clover survey was given by Lea Buzzard and Muriell Scott of the Glendale school.

Elva Aley of the Elm Grove school gave the hay markets for the month of November, which showed "that alfalfa, when sold on the market, nets the farmer more money than any other hay crop."

A summary of the alfalfa chart furnished by the International Harvester company, was given by Edith Schoonover, Hazel Harrington and Lyrrel Stafford of Mt. Pleasant. This showed the experiments that have been worked out by various experiment stations as to the feeding value of alfalfa.

The program was continued by talks from the patrons of the districts represented. Great interest was manifested, which gives the pupils and teachers much encouragement in continuing this work. This program not only showed the advantages of vitalized agriculture, but also how grammar may be correlated with agriculture.

The teachers of the three schools are: Miss Jennie Pugh, Mt. Pleasant; Miss Maud Whitehead, Elm Grove; William Bunn, Glendale.

FROM PRISON CELL TO 'POTASH KING'

The Romantic Story of Frank L. Hulen, Who Quickly Acquired a Fortune of Two Million Dollars

Denver, Colo., Nov. 24.—From a prison cell in the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City to the "Potash King of America," and possessor of a fortune estimated at close to $2,000,000, is the romantic story of Frank L. Hulen, owner of thousands of acres of highly productive potash swamps in Nebraska.

Hulen was in Denver recently and met his former jailer, Tom Tynan, warden of the state penal institution. Hulen has never forgotten the warden's friendship, displayed when a paroie was secured through Tynan's efforts, and at a dinner given Tynan here the man who once laid stones in prison garb recounted his experiences.

Hulen left Oklahoma in 1910, trekking up through Colorado and then on into Wyoming. While prospecting for oil in the latter state he was arrested on a charge of bigamy, brought in Colorado by Bertha Fennel Hulen and Charlotte Richards Hulen, both claiming him as their husband.

Hulen was sentenced from Jefferson county, Colorado, to two years in the penitentiary. His faithfulness to duty and the thoroughness with which he performed the arduous tasks around the "stone pile" attraced Warden Tynan, who assigned him to clerical work in the prison office. Later Tynan secured his parole.

While waiting for trial in the county jail at Golden on the bigamy charge, Hulen became infatuated with the sheriff's daughter there, who frequently alleviated the pining of those in the custody of her father by furnishing sweets and performing small kindnesses for the unfortunate inmates.

Following his release from the Canon City institution, Hulen went to Golden. While attending lectures at the Colorado School of Mines he was deeply impressed with the declaration of a professor in chemistry who, in describing a sample of water sent from a lake in Nebraska for analysis, said that the sample showed traces of potash that indicated the possibility of immense wealth if the territory that produced it were developed.

Hulen quickly won the hand of Miss Dennis, the sheriff's daughter, and the couple started for Nebraska. He built a hut on the edge of a vast swamp and for six months the newlyweds underwent many privations. To the bride it was a scene of desolation, but Hulen saw visions of untold wealth in the dreary surroundings. He acquired as much of the territory as was possible, including a large lake adjacent to the swamp land, and evolved his plans for the manufacture of potash.

When the British shipping blockade cut off the supply of German potash, Hulen was prepared to furnish Uncle Sam with sufficient potash to offset the loss of the Teuton supply He had the potash, but was handicapped by a very limited capital for putting it into marketable condition.

Followed many legal entanglements with Nebraska bankers, but after months of litigation Hulen won his fight with the capitalists and now controls approximately 85 per cent of the potash output of the United States. He has an immense plant at Antioch, Nebr., and is rapidly accumulating a fortune that may rival the wealth of a Carnegie or a Rockefeller.

Hulen, in his affluence, still keeps in touch with Warden Tynan and replenishes the exchequer of many of his former prison mates as they are released from custody.

LEARN NEW POSTAGE RULE

Letters Addressed to Persons in City Require Only Two Cents

It is taking a number of people quite a while to familiarize themselves on the new mailing regulations. For instance, a drop letter, which means a letter mailed to someone in the city, requires a two-cent stamp just as it always required, but it don't require a three-cent stamp. All letters sent out of the city must have a three-cent stamp. Only mail of the first class was affected by the ruling which went into effect a few weeks ago. Postals must have a two-cent stamp instead of a one-cent stamp.

373 Acres Brings $64,342.50

The 373-acre farm tract, known as the Woody Jones farm, lying some five or six miles southeast of Graham, was sold through the agency of Robert Groves of Maitland, to W. G. Wilson recently for $172.50 per acre, or $64,342.50.

DRILL SAND IN THE ROADS

No Better Way of Making a Substantial Roadway Than to Prepare it With an Ordinary Grain Drill

It is an admitted fact that the proper mixture of sand and clay makes a well- packed road, and there is no better way of applying sand to a stretch of clay road than by drilling it with a grain drill. The openings in the drill can be set to apply as much sand as needed, and a uniform distribution is assured. The rule cannot be reversed, of course, in applying clay to a sand road, but here we find another farm tool useful, according to the state highway department, and the manure spreader can be used to advantage. The tools for this character for road improvement are found on practically every farm, and when the Missouri farmer learns that it pays to mix sand with clay in order to improve dirt roads, even the byways, as well as many of the highways, will be improved by this method.

HIS GREAT SPEECH

By ELIAS KILLIAN

"Is this the Woodbrook accommodation?"

He was tall, muscular and in a desperate hurry. It was an accommodation train he was after, but he spoke in limited express time.

"Time's up," was the reply, and the man began to close the gate. He began to close it—but that was all. An arm like steel grasped the iron and, pushing back both gate and keeper, made a path and the young man did not tarry to hear the unpleasant words the gatekeeper said, but started in a full run down the platform. The train was beginning to move, but with a fine jump he caught the rail and then in continuance of his haste he threw himself against the door and moved quickly and intently down the aisles of the cars, going from one to the other in feverish intensity. It was the first train after the fashionable hours of business and society—the twilight train that carries people who have and who make money to their suburban homes.

He met the conductor.

"Captain," he said very rapidly, "is Miss Martingham of Woodbrook on this train?" and before the conductor could reply the young man had darted forward and was standing by an old lady whose generous lap was as full of bundles as a Friday bargain counter—it happened to be Friday, too. In the same seat next to the window sat a beautiful and placid young woman.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Faraday?"

He took off his hat, but his speech was all directed to the elderly lady with the numerous spoils of shopping. "Madam," he said, "I'm very sorry to disturb you—very sorry—but I have something of extreme importance to say to this lady, and I must have the seat you are occupying."

"Sir?"

"Allow me to move your bundles to the seat opposite. Thank you much for your kindness. Just give them to me. That's it. Thank you! Be quick, please, as I must get off at the station after the next one."

"Sir?"

Before the bewildered matron could know what had happened she found herself escorted—driven—to the other seat and the bundles were falling back into her lap in heaps, and in the midst of it all the largest one broke and oranges rolled wildly forth. Then the young man dived after them. He could hardly do less—and it was a lot more than he wanted to do. In a few minutes he had the fruit, and, with more apologies, he jumped around, and took the seat beside the young lady.

"Don't laugh," he said. "Don't speak. Just listen," and with deadly seriousness he went on. "I'm expected to make the principal speech at tonight's meeting. Must get off station after next so as to get back in time. Ten minutes ago I found that Dick Thompson is going out to your house tonight, and I know he is going to propose. Now all I ask is a fair show—just—."

"Well, Mr. Faraday, what do you want?" and the blue eyes danced.

"Miss Martingham—Nellie—it's just this way. All I ask is that you hold out until I can have my say. If I know that I'm to have equal chances with Dick—it's downright mean of him to take advantage of me when he knows I must make that speech—oh, yes, we've been good friends and all that sort of thing—but it's just this way—why don't you see I can never—"

"Really, Mr. Faraday, I have not the slightest idea that Mr. Thompson—"

"I didn't say that you had, but I have, and I know what I am talking about. Now, Nellie, don't throw a fellow down. Hold your heart back for twenty-four hours. That's it—that's what I'm coming to."

"Next station Dover," sang out the brakeman.

"Give me your answer. I think I hear it now. Will you ruin that speech?" he asked. "Or will you give me hope—something to build on and work for? If so, when I am before that great audience, I can see your smile and feel your interest, I know I shall do something that is worthy—but if it's all up, then—"

"I beg your pardon," said the conductor as he stopped at the seat. "Did I give you the right change?"

"Too much?"

"No, too little."

"Then keep it and let me alone. Go away—please go away."

"All out for Dover," sang the brakeman.

"Nellie," he whispered, "stop laughing and tell me whether or not that speech is going to be a failure or a success—tell me enough to keep me from—"

"Dover—all off," sang the voice, and Faraday arose.

"Tell me," he asked.

"I am sure your speech will be a great success and I shall be glad to have you tell me all about it tomorrow night," she said very sweetly.

"God bless you," he exclaimed, as he ran down the aisle.

Optimistic Thought.

While the surest prospect in life is death, good men enjoy contemplation of future happiness.

FOUR HUNDRED TO ONE SHOT

Estimate of Unsentimental Brokers That Lord Kitchener Is Not Among the Living.

Legends once well rooted die hard. Many people believe that Earl Kitchener survived the sinking of the Hampshire, and is either a prisoner of war, or, escaping in a small boat, has reached some remote part of the world and is living in anonymous retirement.

The romance gained a fresh lease of life when Mrs. Parker, a sister of the great general, publicly announced at Hastings not long ago her firm belief that her brother was alive and would one day return.

It is impossible to argue the matter. One can only believe or disbelieve. A measure of credence which business men attach to the story is to be found in a letter printed in the Liverpool Echo. Messrs. A. Letton, Percival & Co., insurance brokers of that city, say that a client of theirs wanted to know what rate could be quoted to cover the following risk:

That Lord Kitchener was alive on August 31, 1917, the onus of proof to be on the assured, and to be furnished within three months from peace being signed.

Lloyd's underwriters were prepared to accept ten thousand pounds at five shillings per cent, and the insurance, if that is the right word for it, has been completed.

The chances of Lord Kitchener being alive are, therefore, regarded by unsentimental brokers as one in four hundred.—London Chronicle.

SAVES MONEY FOR THE ARMY

Indiana Mess Sergeant Feeds His Men for Less Than Twenty-five Cents Each a Day.

How an inexperienced man can feed government troops and save money on the job is being demonstrated at Camp Taylor by Lucas Lincoln of this city, says the Indianapolis News. Lincoln is mess sergeant of the Forty-second company, Eleventh battalion. He was one of the first drafted men to go from here, having volunteered out of his regular order of obligation. He is a son of a furniture manufacturer here, and is married.

In a letter home, Lincoln tells how he is feeding 145 men for less than 25 cents each a day. He says the food is well cooked, and that the men have plenty. A sample menu, inclosed in the letter, shows how Lincoln made a saving of $17.38 on the government's food allowance for the three meals scheduled.

For breakfast the men had hamburger steak, biscuits and syrup, hashed brown potatoes and coffee. The dinner menu was vegetable soup, macaroni and cheese, bread and hot tea, and peach cobbler. For supper the men had boiled ham, mashed potatoes, bread and syrup, tea and stewed prunes.

Love Their Airplanes.

A thrilling story is being told which illustrates the attachment of our flying men to their machines. A young pilot, not yet out of his teens, was flying high over the enemy lines when a hail of bullets suddenly overtook the machine. One struck him in the face, putting out his left eye, another shattered his leg, and the airplane was riddled. To descend among the enemy and receive medical attention would have been easy, but with the numbness of death upon him he still retained consciousness enough to make out our own lines and steer steadily towards that goal. Amid tumultuous cheering the machine at last came down on friendly soil. The young aviator died that night. His last words were: "Doctor, I'm sorry I couldn't bring the old bus home intact."—London Tit-Bits.

No Gladness Among Them.

Nearly a thousand years had passed since the birth of Christ before the Russian Slavs were converted to Christianity. Already the English, the Franks and the Germans had been Christians for some centuries, when, in 987, Prince Vladimir sent envoys to study the religions of the various neighboring nations whose representatives had been urging him to embrace their respective faiths. Nestor describes their report in amusing terms. Of the Mussulmans they reported, "There is no gladness among them, only sorrow and a great stench; their religion is not a good one." At Constantinople they said, "We no longer knew whether we were in heaven or on earth, nor such beauty, and we know not how to tell of it."

Bad Performance.

E. Berry Wall, the New York clubman, arrived one afternoon rather late at an opera matinee that was evidently not good.

The doors were closed till the end of the first act, and as Mr. Wall stood in the lobby with the false strains of the opera floating round him, a lady tried to enter the auditorium, but the doorkeeper shook his head.

"No, no, madam," said Mr. Wall. "The doorkeeper dare not open the door during the singing. Half the audience would rush out."

Easily Explained.

"Your friend was suspected of being a counterfeiter or a bank robber when he tried to get a $1,000 bill changed."

"So he was, but he soon straightened matters out."

"What did he do?"

"Proved he was a motion picture star and seldom got a bill of smaller denomination in his week's salary."

WE'LL HAVE TO QUIT WEED

Getting to be Too Much of a Luxury These Days — Another Raise Is Promised

If the price of tobacco continues to advance users of tobacco are going to take the same stand as have whiskey drinkers, after bootleggers raised the price of booze to two dollars for a half pint—they quit. Local tobacco dealers announce another raise, but they are not to blame. Manufacturers have raised the price, so that the middleman must raise the price. The consumer is the one who must pay. For instance, tobacco which sells for six cents a package now will hereafter cost seven cents. All scrap and plug tobaccos are to be advanced. Men have quit drinking; they will probably quit chewing and smoking tobacco.
